“Live and Learn and Pass it On”
By H. Jackson Brown, Jr.

I've learned that it takes as much time and energy to wish as it does to plan.

I've learned that you never get rewarded for the things you intended to do.

I've learned that if you wait until all conditions are perfect before you act, you'll never act.

I've learned that enthusiasm and success just seem to go together.

I've learned that any activity becomes creative when you try to do it better than you did it before.

I've learned that the most creative ideas come from beginners – not the experts.

I've learned that it is impossible to teach without learning something yourself.

I've learned that bigger is not always better, and that going faster is not necessarily progress.

I've learned that going the extra mile puts you miles ahead of your competition.

I've learned that whenever you need to borrow money, it's best to look prosperous.

I've learned that if I don't know the answer, it's best to say, “I don't know.”
